DETAILED ACTION

Applicant's request for reconsideration filed 10/25/05 has been entered and carefully considered. The arguments regarding rejections under 35.U.S.C 102 and 35 U.S.C 103 to claims (1-16) are persuasive. However, the limitations of the claims have not been found to be patentable over newly discovered prior art; therefore, these claims are rejected under the new ground of rejection as set forth below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 3, 5-8, 9 and 14-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Lapidous [US. 6,874,126].

As to claims 1 and 9, Lapidous teaches a computer implemented method and corresponding apparatus for having a display screen, a switch, and a pointing device for moving a cursor image on the display screen comprising program instructions for performing the steps of displaying an object on the display screen (figure 2, "More information" region, column 6, lines 3-5); displaying a tool tip on the display screen in response to the positioning of the cursor image over the object (figure 2, tool tip 220, column 6, lines 39-44); continuing to display the tool tip in response to the movement of the cursor from the object to the tool tip (figure 2, cursor 230 is still placed over the tool tip).

As to claims 3, 6 and 14, Lapidous discloses performing the step of removing the tool tip from the display screen in response to the movement of the cursor both off the object and off the tool tip (column 6, lines 9-10 and lines 50-54).

As to claims 5, 7, 8, and 15-16, Lapidous also discloses the tool tip including a hyperlink displayed within the tool tip (figure 2, the link "ABC book club"), further comprising program instructions for performing the step of displaying on the display screen linked data in response to the cursor being positioned over the hyperlink within the tool tip and the activation of the switch (figure 2, 205, column 6, lines 62-67).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2, 4 and 10-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lapidous [US. 6,874,126].

As to claims 2 and 10, Lapidous also fail to clearly teach the tool tip having an overlapping portion that overlaps the object on the display screen and a non-overlapping portion that does not overlap the object on the display screen and further the step of continuing to display the tool tip being in response to the movement of the cursor from the object to the overlapping portion of the tool tip, followed by the movement of the cursor from the overlapping portion to the non-overlapping portion of the tool tip.

However, official notice is taken that implementation of continuing to display the tool tip is in response to the movement of the cursor from the object to the overlapping portion of the tool tip, followed by the movement of the cursor from the overlapping portion to the non-overlapping portion of the tool tip was well known in the art. It would have been obvious to one of skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to combine the well known implementation with Lapidous.

Motivation of the combining would have been to give user extra time to obtain additional information from the tool tip.

As to claim 11, Lapidous discloses performing the step of removing the tool tip from the display screen in response to the movement of the cursor both off the object and off the tool tip (column 6, lines 9-10 and lines 50-54).

As to claims 4 and 12-13, Lapidous also discloses the tool tip including a hyperlink displayed within the tool tip (figure 2, the link "ABC book club"), further comprising program instructions for performing the step of displaying on the display screen linked data in response to the cursor being positioned over the hyperlink within the tool tip and the activation of the switch (figure 2, 205, column 6, lines 62-67).
